Fear Self-Immolation May Cause New Crisis

Nun Burns Herself To Death In Hue

SAIGON (AP) — A Buddhist nun burned herself to death Sunday in the northern rebel stronghold of Hue and within hours thousands of supporters massed in Saigon. The incident threatened to touch off a new wave of antigovernment agitation throughout the country.

The nun was identified as Thich Nu Thanh Quang, 55. Other nuns at the pagoda said she had been trying to get permission from Buddhist authorities to burn herself for the past three days.

A Buddhist spokesman in Hue said the self-immolation was a protest against President Johnson's refusal to answer letters condemning the military regime of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

In Saigon, the crowd outside the Buddhist Institute soon swelled to more than 10,000. It marched slowly toward the center of the capital, some two miles distant.

Buddhist monks and novices, 200 strong, led the procession. About 30 per cent of the demonstrators were girls.

The crowd was orderly but tension was rising steadily. At Saigon's pharmacy school, another hotbed of Buddhist agitation, 50 students were on a hunger strike to back demands for the ouster of the military regime.

It appeared that despite its first round victory against Buddhist dissidence, the regime of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky was in for more turmoil.

The new Buddhist outburst came in the face of the government's attempt Saturday to disarm Buddhist opposition with a pledge of "solemn celebrations" for Buddha's birthday June 3rd.

There were signs of confusion and indecision among Buddhist leaders as they awaited the return from abroad of the head of Saigon's institute, the Venerable Tam Chau.

The nun's flaming protest put a new twist to the unrest throughout South Viet Nam for the past two months.

It was the first self-immolation in the current clash between the government and the militant Buddhists. It was likely to have serious repercussions among emotional, easily excited Buddhist crowds.

Self-immolations by Buddhists monks were a factor that preceded the fall of Ngo Dinh Diem's regime in 1963.

As the nun's body turned into ashes in Hue, the Venerable Tri Quang arrived and prayed over it. Tri Quang is regarded as one of the most influential monks and the power behind the Buddhist struggle to overthrow the regime.

His presence at the burning added significance to the desperate act, so often exploited by the Buddhists for political aims.

Two more of Ky's chief opponents, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi and Maj. Gen. Ton That Dinh, rushed to pray at the nun's bier where her still smoldering body lay. Both are former commanders of the First Army Corps area, which includes Hue. They were ousted by Ky.

The nun was identified as Dieu Quang, about 50. She set fire to herself in the compound of the Dieu De pagoda. A monk, threatening more self-immolation, was seen nearby.

Before the massed crowd at Saigon's Buddhist Institute, a yellow-robed monk cut his arm to write a letter in blood to President Johnson. He fainted, blood gushing from his wound.

The multicolored Buddhist flag over the institute was lowered to half-staff in mourning for the dead nun.

Outside the pagoda in Hue, a monk said if President Johnson did not reply to the letter immediately, two monks or nuns would burn themselves Monday and three on Tuesday.

In Washington, the State Department said there would be no comment on the incident in Hue. Ky's pledge on the Buddha birthday celebrations was taken at the time to mean there will be no official interference. Himself a Buddhist, he wrote:

"Our people must forget all vengeance in order to restore brotherhood and to work for peace and happiness for all."

The Defense Ministry ordered all army units to observe the birthday solemnly.

About three-fourths of South Viet Nam's 15 million people are at least nominally Buddhists. Only a small but active and influential minority has been involved in the recent anti-Ky agitation.

This minority appeared shaken up by the firmness and ability with which the government has handled recent events.

Thich (Venerable) Phap Thi, deputy head of Saigon's Buddhist Institute, resigned because of the situation.

Thich Thien Hoa, a relative, was appointed by the institute to succeed him.

The head of the institute, Thich Tam Chau, was expected in Saigon Sunday after a long and somewhat mysterious tour of Southeast Asia.

U.S. officials felt Chau's arrival will lend some moderation to the Buddhist opposition movement.

Cholon, Saigon's Chinatown. The crowd soon swelled to about 1,000 by the addition of the usual assortment of street urchins, old women and idlers. Riot police dispersed them with tear gas.

A shortage of diesel fuel threatened the electric power of Hue, the center of Buddhist revolt in the north. The government is restricting oil shipments daily to one day's supply, about 2,000 gallons. U.S. Consul Thomas Corcoran closed the Hue consulate because of the poor security situation and set up an office in the heavily guarded U.S. Military Assistance Command compound. But Lt. Col. Phan Van Koa, the mayor who resigned Friday and pulled out with 1,000 loyal troops, returned and resumed his work.

A barrage from U.S. 7th Fleet vessels paved the way for the Marine-Vietnamese Operation Mobile. The spokesman said the Davis and Carronade had fired more than 1,000 shells and rockets to clear the landing points. The Davis is a destroyer. The Carronade is a 1,040-ton inshore fire-support ship that sailors call "the bottled cruiser."

With little resistance and few fire fights, losses within the task force were reported light as the operation continued.

Inland, B52 bombers from Guam struck at two suspected Viet Cong troop concentration areas. The targets were about 30 miles northwest of Auang Ngai City.

A reinforced Viet Cong platoon — perhaps 50 men — attacked a unit of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division Friday night in the central highlands north of An Khe, where the troops of Operation Crazy Horse had destroyed a Communist battalion in 11 days of fighting.

REPORT ALL VIET WAR VICTIMS HAVE BEEN IDENTIFIED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Viet Nam war is without a single unknown American fallen in battle, Pentagon records showed Saturday.

This probably makes the war unique in history.

Pentagon historians said they cannot be certain whether this has happened in any past U.S. war, but that "in recorded history for all major wars there have been 'unknown' battle casualties."

In World War I, there were 1,648 American battle dead who never were identified. In World War II, the total of unknowns was 8,532. In Korea, it was held to be 856.

"As yet there have been no 'unknowns' as a result of the Vietnamese war," the defense department said.

Military men said a main reason for the lack of "unknowns" in this war is that the battles involved comparatively small units compared with the mass actions of past conflicts.

Several Buddhist letters have been sent to Johnson since the government cracked down on dissidents in the north protesting U.S. support of the Ky government.

Riot police were on the alert, fearing that crowds, electrified by the suicide, would again take to the streets.

Premier Ky said Friday there were definite signs the Communist Viet Cong has infiltrated the Buddhist opposition movement.

So far, however, the government has kept the situation firmly in hand. The Buddhists appeared not to have thrown all their strength and emotional appeal into the country's confused political arena.

U.S., Viets Comb VC Infested Area

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Broadening the picture of spring search-and-destroy operations, the U.S. command disclosed Saturday 1,500 American Marines and Vietnamese troops are combing the craggy coastal area of Quang Ngai Province against light Communist opposition.

"It's been nearly nothing so far," a spokesman said, listing 15 Viet Cong killed and 20 suspects seized.

Amphibious tractors and helicopters landed the task force Wednesday for the sweep, called Operation Mobile. It centered along Highway 1 north of Quang Ngai City, about 235 miles northeast of Saigon.

Among related developments in military and political fields: South Korean troops battled off Viet Cong in a fight before dawn on 10 miles north of Saigon. The guerrillas were caught while probing toward a bridge being built by a Korean construction unit. The Koreans said they had killed 16 Viet Cong and seized several weapons, including three automatic rifles.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government sought to disarm Buddhist opposition with a pledge of "all facilities" for celebrations of Buddha's birthday June 3. Vietnamese troops were instructed to treat the occasion solemnly.

Warn Cuba To End Intrusion On Base

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Cuba rejected Saturday a United States warning to the Castro regime of grave consequences if Cuban soldiers continued to intrude on the U.S. Navy's sprawling base at Guantanamo Bay.

The United States protest — sent Friday — was returned by the Czechoslovakian embassy in Washington which handles Cuban affairs in this country.

The U.S. protest was filed through diplomatic channels to Havana following two incidents at the base on the southeast coast of Cuba.

The United States said Cubans entered the base last Saturday and again Monday. A Cuban sentry, identified as Luis Ramirez Lopez, was shot Saturday after he had entered Guantanamo, U.S. officials said.

The Pentagon said that there are about 3700 U.S. Marine and Navy men on the base, 2800 U.S. civilians — most of them dependents — and about 900 Cuban employees.

The U.S. note said there had been a series of incursions into the base beginning last March. It protested specifically "provocative actions" of last Saturday and Monday.

Following rejection of the U.S. protest, a State Department spokesman said:

"It can only be assumed that Castro's reaction to the note is further evidence of his need to divert attention from the failures of his regime and the increasing popular dissatisfaction in Cuba."

The U.S. note accused Cuba of "deliberate, unauthorized entrance by Cuban military personnel" and warned that further incursions would have "grave consequences."

The Cuban government has said Ramirez was shot in the back while standing sentry duty at a concrete bunker on Cuban territory.

According to the U.S. version, an American Marine sentry along the eastern fence line of the Guantanamo base saw an armed, uniformed Cuban soldier within the base boundary" last Saturday evening and challenged him. The Marine wounded him with a second shot after the Cuban failed to halt after an initial warning shot.

And on Monday, the U.S. note said, a three-man Marine patrol spotted around midnight "at least five armed and uniformed Cuban soldiers" about 100 yards inside the base along its northern fence. It said the Cubans opened fire on the Marines after being challenged. The U.S. forces returned fire and the Cubans moved back into Cuban territory.

The U.S. version of these incidents has been vehemently disputed by Castro, who accused the United States of provocations and practically threatening Cuba with war.

Managements are destroying the antipovetry program, say a group of House Republicans who want new legislation to solve the problems of the poor.

They urge dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity which runs the program, enlarging the role of state and local governments, and tightening congressional control over spending.

Eight of nine Republicans on the House Education and Labor Committee joined in assailing the current program and presenting an alternative.

Their views are in a dissenting report on a bill approved by the committee's Democratic majority to carry the antipovetry program into its third year. The GOP report foreshadows a bitter fight when the bill comes to the House floor next month.

Offer Program

In place of the committee bill, which would authorize $1.75 billion for the coming fiscal year, the Republicans offer a program they call the Opportunity Crusade, which would continue the present programs, but with redefined goals, standards and administration.

It would authorize $1.4 billion in federal money and call for partial matching of funds by local and state agencies to produce a total of $1.98 billion for the various programs.

They would place the Job Corps and Neighborhood Youth Corps in the Labor Department, adult education programs in the Office of Education, and leave only the Community Action programs and the Domestic Peace Corps in the OEO.

The report accuses the Democrats of "one of the sorriest exhibitions of political partisanship" Congress "has ever witnessed" in drafting the pending bill.

That was the prediction of Melvin E. Peterson, a replacement belt and hose specialist for Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

Peterson said in an interview that he wished drivers would not be quite so indifferent to some of the things that happen under the hood. This casual attitude, he estimated, is costing American motorists millions of dollars each year.

Peterson envisions thousands of American families stranded in their autos on lonely roads because of stalled engines, run-down batteries and steaming radiators.

Most of these troubles could be prevented, he said, "if car owners would stop taking for granted their fan belts and radiator hose, two of the most misunderstood parts of an automobile."

Peterson, who has observed the problem for many years, offered these statistics: An estimated 15 million Americans are driving autos with defective fan belts or radiator hoses or both; at least 25 million of the cars on the road today will need fan belt or hose replacement units within the next 12 months.

to their homes or to the army. The chaplain fled. Some of his soldiers are still in the pagoda.

The stark problem of Viet Nam's indecision, of half-hearted protest and clamor for something new and better, ended in this pathetic "defensive perimeter."

"We are letting them stay there, they don't do any harm," said Col. Lap, grinning.

The dusty streets of Hoi An are lined with barbed wire. Expressionless troops in heavy American helmets their belts hung with hand grenades, listlessly stand watch. Some crouch in the dust.

Over the surrounding countryside, American planes fly relentless missions against the Viet Cong. Somehow, to the people of Hoi An, this has become a strange war, fought by strangers.

The battle, however, soon disintegrated, most of its men deserting the chaplain to return western fence. It said the Cubans opened fire on the Marines after being challenged. The U.S. forces returned fire and the Cubans moved back into Cuban territory.

Lincoln Courtroom Was Rededicated A Year Ago

By VIRGIL REYHER
BEARDSTOWN — Just a year ago, in May of 1965, Beardstown rededicated the historic Lincoln Courtroom in the old city hall here, and since that time, despite a lack of publicity, hundreds of visitors inspect the shrine every month.

A register in the restored courtroom, where Lincoln won the famous Almanac Trial, discloses that people from almost every state have turned into Beardstown to see where Old Abe successfully defended the son of a friend on a murder charge.

The room in which that trial occurred in May of 1858 has been restored to the instigation of the Case County Historical Society and with the help of scholars and experts from the state departments.

$10,000 Project
More than $10,000 in local funds were expended on the Beardstown project that now appears just as it did in the days when Lincoln was a circuit riding lawyer, and when he defended Duff Armstrong of New Salem who was charged with killing one James Metzger at a camp meeting near Havana August of 1857.

Officials Debate Need For Space Rescue System

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Inevitably astronauts one day will flash the dreaded "May Day" signal from space, signifying they are in trouble.

If it happens in the next couple of years, there will be no way of going to their aid. They may be lost in space — able to communicate with earth, but helpless until their ship becomes an orbiting coffin.

The near-tragedy of Gemini 8 shook up U.S. space officials. They dusted off many rescue proposals which had been set aside because there wasn't enough money to pursue them.

Pros and Cons

Still, there are many pros and cons on whether money would be better spent on a rescue system or on making space ships as safe as possible.

Astronaut Neil A. Armstrong, whose skillful flying saved the Gemini 8 mission, favors the latter, at least for the present.

Asked after his flight whether he thought a space rescue system should be developed, Armstrong replied: "I'm sure there's certainly some merit to that approach. However, I would guess that at this stage in the program it takes so long to develop that sort of capability that our effort should be expended toward removing any problem that might exist in our spacecraft design."

New Berlin To Build New Grade School

NEW BERLIN — E. T. Wyman, Superintendent of Community Unit District No. 16 Schools, stated Thursday that the District School Board is planning a new elementary school building to be in the construction stage by Spring of '67. The building will replace the Berlin and New Berlin Grade schools. Architectural firms Tobermann and Associates of Springfield, and Lyle DeWitt of Decatur are both working on plans to be submitted to the Board by September 1, 1966. Cost of the building will be determined after the submission of the plans, with the cost of the project to be paid from the current building fund.

Two places are being considered for the construction, either behind the present New Berlin structure or at the west end of the high school.

A possible new gymnasium is in the proposal plans to be added at a later date, according to Wyman.

Architect Lyle DeWitt has been hired by the Board to conduct a health and welfare survey at the high school and four district grade schools.

Vacancies

As of Thursday, several vacancies exist in the faculty due to the resignations of the following teachers: Mrs. Donna Schultz, fifth grade teacher at New Berlin Grade; Donald Bare, junior high science; Kevin Moore, head coach of the high school and history; Miss Helen Johnson, girls' physical education teacher. Driver's education and bookkeeping instructors are also needed. Applications will be accepted at the Unit Office, New Berlin.

Wyman states that Charles Vaughn of Bloomington has been given a contract as assistant coach and junior high coach, to replace Jerry West who has resigned. Mrs. Jane Vaughn, his wife, has been given a contract to teach high school English, a position held by Miss Carol Morrissey until her resignation. Ann Clary has been hired as cook at the Berlin school, replacing Barbara Johnson who resigned.

Student Council Elects

Newly elected officers for 1966-67 for Student Council of New Berlin High School are: Madeline Staley, president, and Sally Summers, secretary.

Council members include seniors Jim Walter and David Frank; juniors Melanie Jacobs and Gary Prince; sophomore Karen Wichterman and Sandra Lovekamp; freshmen David Benner and Terry Crawford.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—The market for butcher hogs was fairly active and strong most of the week as offerings fell to the smallest total in seven weeks. Prices closed mostly $1.25-1.50 higher.

The run of 24,500 head was off 5,000 from the previous week and prices ran above $26 tops on all days except Wednesday. On Friday, it went to $27, high, and that price was paid on March 7. Last week's top was $26, paid on one day.

Average price was estimated at $24.50, highest weekly average in more than two months. It was $23.69 last week and $21.16 a year ago.

With slaughter steers selling 25 to 75 cents a hundredweight lower, the average for the week fell to $26, lowest for any week

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market made a substantial recovery last week, rising for the first time in five weeks, but trading was the lightest this year.

The slow dealings reflected continued caution rather than an ebullient return to a confident bull market move. Wall Street analysts believed that the market was still to prove whether its big shakeout this spring is over or whether it has further to go.

The market recovery was regarded as chiefly technical, although there were some items of good news. Prominent among these was a statement by President Johnson which was interpreted as meaning that he is now "leaning away" from a tax increase.

A "softer" attitude toward a tax increase was also ascribed to William McChesney Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

The Dow Jones industrial average last week advanced 20.04 to 897.04. This put it very close to the 900 level which is now regarded by market technicians as a barrier which will offer resistance to advance — people seizing the opportunity to sell stock at prices prevailing at around that area.

Analysts said two obvious alternatives ahead are whether stocks would clear this hurdle, or whether they will bounce downward and "test" the closing low of 884.14 to see if it is a steady "floor."

The Dow Industrials sank 131.01 from their February high to the low of May 17. They have recovered 32.09 points in the Dow.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week advanced 5.7 to 324.7. This was their largest weekly rise since the week ended April 9 when they advanced 6.1.

Volume was 31,025,670 shares compared with 43,602,110 the previous week.

The renewal of cautious buying on the part of the big institutional investors such as mutual funds was one of the reasons behind the market's rise.

Although trading was light, there was no question about where the emphasis was — it lay on the buy side. Of 1,565 issued, only 356 declined.

A fundamental reason for accumulation of Blue Chips by big investors lay in the fact many stocks prices had been pounded down so low that their dividend yields now compared favorably with the higher interest rates available from debt securities.

The bond market plummeted sharply for the week, setting record lows for the year. Of the 39 Treasury issues, all but one issue declined one to one and one-half points for the week.

Corporates were generally off one point across the board. And municipal bonds, although offering higher yields, traded lower.

Scott was the first prisoner to escape with the ski detail in more than 400 performances, the warden said.

Obote

Lines formed outside police stations Saturday in response to a government order for people to hand over weapons.

In two days of bloody fighting in Mengo, capital of the 400-year-old kingdom of Buganda, troops drawn largely from Obote's own northern Nilotic tribe smashed opposition to the central government.

It finally was a showdown between Obote and Sir Edward Frederick Mutesa, the ruling Buganda monarch who often is called King Freddie. Obote recently deposed King Freddie as Uganda's head of state.

Obote claims 20 people were killed when his army laid siege to the king's hilltop palace to search for hidden arms. Another 20 were killed in scattered violence elsewhere in Buganda, he reports.

Witnesses, however, tell of being truckloads of bodies being dumped into mass graves on the edge of Lake Victoria. Hospitals in Kampala have been ordered to record gunshot fatalities as deaths by unknown causes.

The Cambridge-educated king, also 40, vanished from his palace after reportedly taking his turn behind a machine gun.

He is believed to have escaped through a secret "gate of death," an underground passage leading to the royal tombs. The violence climaxed months of political unrest which have seen Obote steadily assuming increased powers.

Eisenhower Trips JHS For Title, 4-1

By BUFORD GREEN

DECATUR — Decatur Eisenhower's hard-throwing Danny Spain stopped Jacksonville on only one hit and handed the Crimsons a 4-1 defeat to capture the Capital Conference baseball crown, here Saturday morning.

Eisenhower scratched four runs off JHS ace Rich Coble, who lost only his third game in two years, and rode Spain's 13-strikeout pitching to the triumph that gave the winners a 3-0 mark to the Crimsons' 2-1 slate in the final standings.

Spain and Coble locked up in a sparkling pitching duel for the first four innings before a wild pitch and a late throw home allowed Eisenhower to break the ice.

Coble did not allow a base-runner the first three innings, and got the first two out in the fourth before the roof fell in. Eisenhower's Denny Thornton got the first hit of the game, a sharp single up the middle. Gary Corey followed with a broken-bat bloop single to short left, putting runners on second and third after Corey preceded to swipe second.

A high, outside fast ball by Coble hit catcher Dan Brooks' glove and rolled back to the screen, allowing the premier run of the contest to cross. With runners on first and third in the same frame Brooks threw through on an attempted steal and second baseman Mike Tendick's throw home was late, giving Eisenhower a 2-0 edge.

JHS had a runner in the first when Ken Miller walked but was out stealing, and in the second, when Ed Winger worked for a walk after fouling off four pitches on 3-2 counts. Winger was erased when Charley Robson grounded to short.

From the second on the Crimsons went down in order until the top of the sixth when the visitors got their only scoring opportunity of the game off Spain, a senior right hander for Eastern Illinois University on a full athletic scholarship.

Ron Farmer walked to start the JHS sixth, but was forced at second on Brooks' grounder to short. After Tendick fanned, center fielder Miller looped a broken-bat single up the middle, the only JHS hit of the day. Robin Manker lined a sinking liner to right, a ball that was caught then dropped by the right fielder, letting Brooks cross the plate with the lone Jacksonville run. Coble fanned to end the threat with runners on second and third.

Eisenhower pushed across two unearned runs in the bottom of the sixth, coming via a error by JHS's Robson in right field. Gary Hartman slapped a sharp single between first and second, then stole second to start the game-icing rally.

Robson dropped Corey's routine fly to right with one out, letting one run score and the runner go to second. Bob Delaughter legged out an infield single and Corey scored minutes later when Tendick had Delaughter out at second but dropped the ball.

Spain finished in a blaze, fanning all three men in the top of the seventh.

Jacksonville finished its season with a 13-7 record, while Eisenhower closed out at 14-5.

Rockets Need Boosters

"Rockets Need Boosters" was the atomic age slogan last Friday night at a meeting of the Routh High School Athletic Committee held in Our Saviour's grade school. Twenty-six members of Our Saviour's Men's Club, in an organizational meeting, discussed the formation of an athletic Boosters' Club at the east-end Catholic high school.

Robert J. Kaufmann, Sr., was unanimously elected the first president of the newly formed group. Jack Yording was elected vice president; Jerome Lubner, secretary, and Robert Duncan, treasurer.

"Occupancy of the new high school building next September ushers in a new era in the history of Routh," Kaufmann pointed out, "and it's up to Routh fans to get behind the new coach, Fred Curtis, and the kids in their renovated sports' program. We've got to start down in the grades and foster a healthy competitive spirit in those youngsters who some day will be on the Routh varsity."

The first meeting of the Routh Rocket Boosters will be held in Formaz Hall at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, June 12. Coach Curtis and assistant coach, Larry Pacotti will speak to the prospective members. The officers of the Boosters' Club will present the aims and the program of the organization. Refreshments will be served.

ISU GRAD JOINS CHIEFS

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Chuck Mills, 36-year-old assistant coach at the University of Arizona, has joined the Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League as an assistant head coach Hank Stram said Saturday.

Mills, a graduate of Illinois State University, has been in the coaching profession for 16 years. He was head coach of Pomona College, Claremont, Calif., from 1957 through 1961; Indiana State Teachers College, Indiana, Pa., from 1962 to 1963; and the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, N.Y., in 1964.

LONER: JHS catcher Dan Brooks slides safely across home with the only run the Crimsons scored in a 4-1 loss to Decatur Eisenhower Saturday, a victory that gave the Decatur club the Capital Conference title. Brooks scored from second when the Eisenhower right fielder dropped a fly ball. Catcher is Bob Lamb.

Indy 500 Seen As Battle Between Clark, Andretti

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — More than a quarter-million speed fans will surge into the venerable Indianapolis Motor Speedway Monday, eager to see if world road racing champion Jimmy Clark of Scotland can handle a smoking challenge from Italian-born Mario Andretti.

It will be the golden anniversary 500-mile Memorial Day race.

Last year it was Clark versus A. J. Foyt of Houston, three-time American champion, in the early stages of the race, but Foyt's car was no match for Clark's new Lotus-Ford and the Scot won going away.

Foyt was the fastest qualifier last year, which meant the 32 other drivers could not try to pass him in the flying start until after he crossed the starting line. Clark, running beside him in the three-car front row, burst ahead on the first turn.

Andretti was the fastest qualifier this year in two weekends of 10-mile trials and again Clark sits in the No. 2 spot in a 1966

Culp, Knowles Blank Giants On Six Hits, 2-0

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ray Culp and Darold Knowles collaborated on a six-hitter as the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the San Francisco Giants 2-0 Saturday.

Culp blanked the Giants through the first seven innings on three hits. Four Philadelphia errors put him in first and fifth-inning jams, but he pitched out of them.

Knowles, a rookie southpaw, allowed the Giants three more hits in the final two innings.

Dick Groat drew a leadoff walk from Joe Gibbon in the fifth inning and was sacrificed to second. Bobby Vinn singled Groat to third, and Cookie Rojas brought him home on a single for the first run of the game.

Rich Allen led off the sixth inning with a triple down the right field line and scored on Bill White's sacrifice fly. Philadelphia 000 011 000—2 5 4 San Francisco 000 000 000—0 6 2

Set Mid-East College Tourney

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Four teams will compete at Wittenberg University June 2-3 for the NCAA Mid-East college division baseball championship.

The teams will be Illinois State University of Normal, Ill., with a 27-2 record and champion of the Interstate Athletic Conference of Illinois 9-1 in conference play; University of Jackson, Tenn., with a 18-7 record and winner of the Volunteer State Athletic Conference title 16-2; conference record; Youngstown University, an independent with a 16-3 record, and Wittenberg, 10-4, Ohio Conference champion with an 8-1 conference record.

The pairings will pit Union against Youngstown at 11 a.m. Thursday, June 2, and Wittenberg against Illinois State at 3:30 p.m. The consolation game of the losers in these games play at 11 a.m. Friday, June 3, with the championship final at 3:30 p.m.

model Lotus-Ford. They were in a class by themselves in the qualifications with Andretti setting a record of 165.899 mile-per-hour in a rebuilt Brabham-Ford and Clark doing 164.144.

Down To 163

Nobody else reached 163. That could be deceptive because Foyt qualified late at 161.355 in a new Lotus-Ford hurriedly assembled from packing cases after he wrecked his original car. The new car has been torn down in the past week, reassembled and tuned meticulously.

Clark holds all the records for the race proper except in the early stages. The late Bobby Marshman established 1964 marks for 10, 20 and 30 laps which were not matched last year, when Foyt set a record for 70 laps. From there to the end of the 200-lap grind around the 2½-mile track the record book is all Clark, 1965, including 150.686 m.p.h. for the distance.

There will be two former winners among the starters besides Clark and Foyt, 1961 and 1964. Parnelli Jones of Torrance, Calif., 1963 winner, will start in the No. 4 spot, with Rodger Ward, of Indianapolis, 1959-62, in the 13th position.

Both Jones and Ward can be contenders if their super-charged Offenhauser 4s, a new engine, hold up for the dis-

Prep Baseball's Finals Field Is Completed

CHICAGO (AP)—The field for the finals of the Illinois state high school baseball tourney was set Saturday with the qualification of Chicago Austin.

Austin won a berth in the tourney which opens next Thursday at Peoria, Ill., by defeating Taft 4-2 Friday in the Chicago Public League playoff.

On Thursday, Austin was outlasted in a wild scoring game, 17-16 by Chicago Marshall in a regular season contest.

Pairings for the state quarterfinal round at Peoria's Tom Connor Field Thursday include:

Upper Bracket
10:30 a.m.—Danville vs. Galesburg
11:30 a.m.—Glenbrook North vs. Murphysboro

Lower Bracket
2 p.m.—Chicago Austin vs. Alton
4 p.m.—Rock Island Alleman vs. Moline South.

Semifinals will be played Friday morning and the title game Friday afternoon.

An original field of 474 downstate and 44 Chicago schools was entered, including the defending champion Peoria Manual which was eliminated in district play.

Reiser Takes Over Hack Club

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Stan Hack resigned Saturday as manager of the Dallas-Fort Worth club in the Texas League and was succeeded by Pete Reiser, who spent most of his 27-year baseball career with the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers.

Hack said he wanted to devote more time to operation of a restaurant and cocktail bar at Grande De Tour, Ill., about 100 miles from Chicago.

Hack had been with Dallas-Fort Worth only six weeks and the club had been in the second division from the start. It was one-half game out of the league cellar Saturday.

Reiser last managed Spokane in the Pacific Coast League, and was out for a year because of illness. He then went to Japan where he coached Japanese players in hitting.

He had been a special batting instructor and special assistant scout for the Chicago Cubs under Leo Durocher when he was assigned the job here.

Most of the other chargers in the field have special Ford V-8s, including Jim McElreath, winner of the 150-mile at Phoenix, Ariz., in March. The only other U.S. Auto Club championship race this year, the rain-shortened Trenton 150 in April, was won by Ward.

Four European Cars

Jackie Stewart of Scotland, winner of the Monaco Grand Prix last Sunday, will be one of four European road racers in the field. He and Graham Hill of England, No. 2 in the world standings last year just ahead of Stewart, will be among seven first-time starters in the 500.

The durability of some of the drivers contrasted with the track's mortality record. There have been 57 deaths at the 433-acre racing plant, including 33 drivers, 14 mechanics, 9 spectators and one guard. After death-free competition in trials and the race last year, driver Chuck Rodeo of Indianapolis was killed in a qualification warmup lap last May 14.

The purse, including special awards by oil and accessory companies, may reach $750,000. The management, which guarantees only $150,000 but pays according to attendance, will not announce the payoff until the traditional victory dinner Tuesday night.

Standings announced at the end of the race are only tentative. The official finish will be announced at 9 a.m. EDT Tuesday after an all-night check of electric timing tape. Car owners will have 30 minutes to file any protests.

Boston Homers Trip Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Home runs by Dalton Jones, Jim Gosger and Tony Conigliaro offset a grand slam by Jim King Saturday as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Washington Senators 6-5.

Jim Lonborg was working on a five-hit shutout through seven innings but got into trouble when he made a throwing error on a ground ball by Don Blasingame that opened the eighth. With one out, Bob Savere doubled to center, and Lonborg walked Frank Howard, loading the bases.

Dick Radatz relieved Lonborg, and King blasted a home run over the right field fence. King's homer cut Boston's lead to 6-4, and the Senators made it even closer on doubles by Don Lock and Blasingame in the 10th inning.

Jones, who also had a triple opened the Red Sox' power attack with his third home off loser Jim Hannan in the third, and Gosger hit his second in the next inning. Jones' homer followed a double by George Scott. Conigliaro clouted his seventh in the seventh inning off Casey Cox.

START MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Creation of a memorial scholarship honoring Lt. John Bruce Capel, killed in Viet Nam action May 12, was announced at the University of Illinois Saturday.

Capel, center on the 1964 Illinois Rose Bowl Football team, was graduated from Illinois in 1965 with a bachelor's degree in recreation. He was killed leading a Marine platoon.

Abernathy Traded For Lee Thomas

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs traded veteran relief pitcher Ted Abernathy to the Atlanta Braves for outfielder-first baseman Lee Thomas Saturday.

The two clubs started a three-game series here Friday.

At the same time, the Cubs bought the contract of reliever Church Estrada from their Tacoma club in the Pacific Coast League.

Abernathy, 33, last season set a major league record by appearing in 84 games as he made his debut with the Cubs. He also tied the National League record by finishing 62 games as he posted a 4-6 record.

For the current season, Abernathy stands 1-3 and has been less effective with a 6.23 ERA for 18 games, compared with his 2.58 ERA last season.

Thomas, 3, a former American League leaguer like Abernathy, is batting .200 in 39 games for the Braves. His 25 hits in 125 trips include six homers and he has 15 RBIs.

Estrada, 28, previously was acquired by the Cubs from the Baltimore Orioles for their Tacoma club.

Weiskopf Grabs Oklahoma City Tourney Lead

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, a 23-year-old pro who left the tour for a rest earlier this year, slammed in three birdies on the last three holes to take the 54-hole lead in the Oklahoma City Open Golf Tournament Saturday.

Weiskopf, who shot a 68 for a 205 total, was one stroke up on Tony Lama and two ahead of Johnny Pott, the leader for the first two days.

Big Jack Nicklaus and Terry Dill were right behind with 208s. It was another clear, windless day, and the pros ripped into the 7,173 par-72 course with ease.

Peter Thomson, who wound up with a 65 for the day and a 211 total, set a course record for the front nine with a blazing 29. Nicklaus, who was 10 strokes off the pace, when he started Saturday, played with the authority that the husky Masters champion commands as he shot a 65.

U.S. open champion Gary Player had his golden moment, too, carding a 66 to go four under par for the tournament. Player was four over after the first round.

Weiskopf, who has won $16,800 in his four last tourney starts and almost $25,000 this year, holed a birdie putt from 40 feet on No. 16 and picked up birdies on Nos. 17 and 18.

Thomson, who was nine under par at one time and threatening to set a course record, bogeyed two of his last three holes for a 65.

Pott, who had command of the Quail Creek course for the first two days, took a triple-bogey 7 on the 11th hole after bogeying the 10th to slump from what had been a 13-under-par total.

Lema, whose only bogey in the 54 holes came after a two-stroke penalty Friday, had a consistent round of 69. Nicklaus also was slapped with a two-stroke penalty Thursday.

Yanks And Sox Play To 2-2 Tie

NEW YORK (AP) — Saturday night's game between the New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox was rained out after five innings of play with the score tied 2-2.

It was an official game, having gone the necessary five innings, and all individual records went into the book. The game will be rescheduled at a later date.

The Yankees scored a run in the first inning on Mickey Mantle's ground-rule double, two walks and an infield single by Roger Repoz. Roy White hit his fifth homer in the second off Chicago pitcher Bruce Howard.

Pete Ward beat out a bunt in the White Sox' second, took third on Lee Elia's single and scored on Al Weis' bunt.

The Sox tied it in the fourth against left-hander Fritz Peterson when shortstop Clete Boyer misjudged Elia's pop fly for a two-base error and Weis knocked in Elia with a single.

100,000 Golfers Attempt To Top Player And Marr

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa, the U.S. Open champion, and Dave Marr, PGA titleholder, will meet in an 18-hole match here Monday in National Golf Day's Round of Champions.

Around the country, 100,000 other golfers, using their handicaps over their home courses, will attempt to beat the best score of the two national champions.

The match over the 7,180-yard, par 70 Firestone Country Club course will be televised between 5 and 6 p.m. EDT by NBC.

The Firestone Club also is site of the PGA national championship July 20-23.

Each challenger pays a $1 fee for a chance to beat the champion and, if he succeeds with his handicap, he receives a special certificate. Proceeds are distributed to various golf charities by the National Golf Fund.

If the champion this year shoots a 69, the average for the 14 years of the event, players would have to record a net score of two-under-par to win. For example, he would need a 70 on a par 72 course.

Men with normal handicaps of 10 strokes would have to score an 80 or better on a par 72 course to qualify for a certificate. The ladies get it easier. A lady with a handicap of 18, plus seven strokes given because of her sex, needs to shoot only a gross of 95 or lower on a 72-par course to beat the champion's 69.

More than 25,000 golfers succeeded last year.

Maryland Takes 2nd IC4A Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Maryland's defending champions, scoring heavily in the field events and in the sprints with Jimmy Lee, captured their second straight IC4A track and field title Saturday.

The young Terrapins scored 40 points, 27 of them in the field events. Villanova, getting 14 points from middle distance stars Dave Patrick, a sophomore, and Ian Hamilton, was second with 32.

Morgan State was third with 20 followed by Penn State 17. Manhattan, Cornell and Navy tied at 15 points each in this 80th IC4A which drew entries from a record 82 schools.

Three meet records fell and one was tied as the two-day meet at Downing Stadium met with all 18 final events being staged in intermittent rain before a slim crowd of about 2,500.

Maryland was led by sophomores Ed Marks, winner of the triple jump with 49-6½ and second in the long jump at 23-6¼, and Lee, second in both the 100 and 220 yard sprints, and junior Frank Costello, repeating as high jump king at 6-10.

Pick Kauai King To Win Belmont, Triple Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Kauai King, front running winner of the Kentucky Derby and come-from-behind victor in the Preakness, is the short-priced favorite to win the 98th running of the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes Saturday and become the ninth horse to wrap up the elusive Triple Crown.

Not since Citation in 1948 has a horse won all three turf classics for 3-year-old thoroughbreds. Before Citation, the only horse to win the Triple were Assault, 1946; Count Fleet, 1943; Whirlaway, 1941; War Admiral, 1937; Omaha, 1935; Gallant Fox, 1930 and Sir Barton, 1919.

Four others have gone into the 1½ miles of the Belmont, called by many experts the toughest of the three, with a chance to join the exclusive club after winning the Kentucky Derby and Preakness. But all failed. They are Pensive, 1944; Tim Tam, 1958; Carry Back, 1961 and Northern Dancer, 1964.

Not more than five or six are expected to take on the son of Native Dancer-Sweep In. Kauai King himself was not nominated for the Belmont but owner Michael Ford says his $5,000 supplementary fee will be in the hands of the racing secretary by Tuesday. Entries fees of $250 each are due Friday and it'll cost another $1,000 to start.

Post time will be 5:15 p.m. EDT. CBS will televise the race at Aqueduct from 5:53 p.m. EDT.

Kauai King, winner of eight of his 10 starts this year and second in another for earnings of $369,027, finally convinced skeptics in the Preakness that he's something special.

JHS Golf Squad Cops Loop Crown

DECATUR — Jacksonville High school captured its third straight Capitol Conference golf title, here Saturday afternoon, with three of the top four individuals.

Team scores gave JHS 320, Decatur MacArthur 334, Springfield Griffin 335, Decatur Eisenhower 347 and Springfield Lanphier 367.

Crimson, senior Jim Cisme was medalist for the meet, firing an impressive 38-37-75 over the windy, par 72 Faries Park course. Cisme unseated defending medalist, Vito Saputo of Griffin, who finished with a 39-39-78.

Following the top two were Crimsons Steve Bockemeier with a 40-40-80 for third and Greg Neff with a 44-38-82 for fourth. Gill Reuben of MacArthur was fifth with a 41-42-83. JHS's Bill Schneider came in sixth with a 42-41-83.

Other Crimsons scores were Tor Duever 41-44-85, Fred Grant 42-44-86 and Don Jarrett 44-43-87. Only the low four of the seven players from each counted.

Gabrielson Does More Than Play

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK — (NEA) — During the Gas House Gang era, Dizzy Dean passed time on road trips dropping water bombs on anyone who walked beneath his hotel window.

Pepper Martin, the third baseman, amused himself by racing automobiles.

Frankie Frisch, the manager — well he grew old quickly.

What Frisch needed was a Len Gabrielson. Correction: a team of Len Gabrielsons.

Gabrielson is an outfielder-first baseman with the San Francisco Giants who once studied for the foreign service at the University of Southern California.

He also hit baseballs quite far and the bonus money for young baseball players was considerably higher than the bonuses for young foreign service employees.

So Gabrielson chose baseball. He has been with Milwaukee, Chicago and San Francisco and last year hit 293 with the Cubs and Giants.

During the off-season, Gabrielson has a chance to practice his other profession. He's with one of the country's largest dairy firms — in its international division. He's well-prepared.

"I was in the School of International Relations at Southern Cal," Gabrielson said. "For two years I took the general course then switched to the economic side."

"I'm working on my master's now and I've already completed my thesis."

The thesis is titled: "Three aspects of Italian Economic Policy."

He did much of the research on road trips during the 1955 baseball season. "Whatever city we were in," Len said, "I would spend time reading in the libraries, gathering material for my thesis."

"The best libraries were at Columbia University in New York, Cal-Berkeley, Independence Library in Philadelphia and the Houston Library. Most of the research came from articles, documents, Senate discussions and resolutions."

He still visits the libraries, but now it's mostly to stay abreast of his fast developing (off-season) profession.

"We are expanding our foreign markets quite a bit," Gabrielson said. "So I have to keep up with international marketing, tariff policies, foreign competition, transportation, marketing analysis."

"I'm also working on a real estate license which means even more reading."

All of this probably would shock Frankie Frisch.

In his day, "The Sporting News" was serious reading.

A New Image?

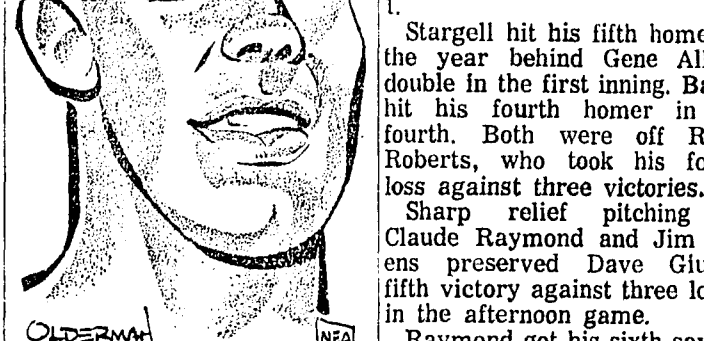

I don't care how subdued Cassius Clay appears in his new image. He's never gonna get me when he uses his postfight felicitations to avow his spiritual fealty to Elijah Muhammad, preacher of hatred.

And I never saw a more impotent challenger than Wayne Thornton against Jose Torres for the lightweight crown. Torres, fighting a terrible, tactical fight, was still so superior it was no contest. Jose forgot he had a left jab against the straight — moving California punching bag.

This is the first year Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins has had no health problem. He played his first two seasons in the majors with a swollen middle finger on the right hand and a bad knee, both of which required operations — and still led the league in batting. To improve his English, Tony watches cowboy movies, just like Pete Ramos used to do.

The transformation of the Yankees is simple to Steve Hamilton, the elongated relief pitcher. They're winning the one-run games they lost in the early going — and they have Ralph Houk, "the greatest psychologist in baseball."

Wellington Mara doesn't know why his signing of Pete Gogolak, the displaced Buffalo placekicker, should bother anybody. "He had a perfectly valid and legal right to sign with us," says Well. "If we're going to have contracts in football that are no good, then we should devise some sort of contract that we intend to live up to."

Nevertheless, the other owners in the NFL weren't uniformly happy about the threat of counterattacks and one of them blasted the league for sanctioning the move.

Best thing Dave Marr likes about playing golf this year is that he doesn't have to bother to qualify for the major events — like the upcoming U.S. Open — because he's the reigning PGA champ.

Earl Falson, on a quick trip from San Diego, ostensibly to visit his mother in Newport News, Va., ventured the thought that he'd be playing in Toronto next fall. "The big defensive end sounded as though he had his tongue in cheek. He was also in the company of George Sauer, who happens to be the personnel scout for the New York Jets."

The kids may be the wave of the future for the New York Mets, but skipper Wes Westrum credits their surge this year to the old guys — and intimates that he wasn't particularly happy with jibes about his old infield of Dick Stuart, Ed Bressoud, Roy McMillan and Ken Boyer (average age: 34½). "As long as I manage," he says, "I'll have a team amply stocked with veterans."

Crimsons Capture Loop Track Title

SPRINGFIELD — With a pair of record-breaking individual champions and two impressive winning relay teams leading the way, Jacksonville High school's track squad captured its first Capitol Conference track title, here Saturday afternoon.

Superior depth along with five firsts gave the Crimsons a total of 76 points, 21 better than second place Decatur MacArthur, which won the event the past years. Following in order in the tight meet were Lanphier 54, Eisenhower 47 and Griffin 40.

Santo's 12th Inning Home Run Off Abernathy Wins For Cubs 8-5

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Santo hit a three-run homer off former teammate Tod Abernathy with two out in the 12th inning Saturday, giving the Chicago Cubs an 8-5 victory over Atlanta.

Abernathy, who gave up a game-tying single to Lee Thomas in the eighth inning, was traded to the Braves before the game for Thomas.

With two out in the 12th, Abernathy walked Glenn Beckert. Beckert stole second, and Abernathy intentionally walked Billy Williams, who had driven in four of the Cubs' first five runs.

Santo then came up and drove his eighth homer onto the left field catwalk, ending the game. The Cubs rallied for three runs and a 5-5 tie in the eighth.

The Braves had increased their lead to 5-2 in the top of the eighth on Denis Menke's home run and Mack Jones' sacrifice fly. Jones hit the fly after Hundley dropped his second pop foul of the inning.

Editorial Comment

A True Memorial

Six widows gave an inspiring example of a memorial to their fallen husbands a few weeks ago.

It was just supposed to be a friendly, get-acquainted evening. They hoped to be able to put aside, for a little while, the memories of the bitter news that had come from Viet Nam and, by mutual compassion, buoy each other up for the lonely days to come and the responsibilities of raising their fatherless children.

It was an evening of shared sympathy and tears were close to the surface all the time. Out of it, however, came an idea that demonstrated the true stuff these women are made of.

They decided to have more meetings. Each will contribute to a fund which they'll use to send CARE packages to widows and orphans in Vietnamese villages. Further, they resolved to bake cookies for each of the future meetings and send them to the military units to which their husbands belonged.

Memorial Day is once more upon us. Its significance as a day set aside to remember the brave men who have given their lives in the service of their country is not lost on us at this moment.

With so many of our youth now absent in foreign lands, with so many of them daily traversing the valley of the shadow of death, we gain new appreciation of the sacrifice of even the most obscure soldier who lies in a hero's grave.

But few of us in similar circumstances could match the courage of these Cleveland widows. Not only are they bravely facing up to their own losses, they are holding out a helping hand to their anonymous sisters in Viet Nam who share the same kind of grief.

Their quiet example shines forth brighter and stronger and more meaningfully than all the flags and bunting, all the parades and speeches the rest of us could devise to observe Memorial Day.

Fewer Cards In Our Hand

This country is rapidly running out of alternatives in Viet Nam.

Twenty-one months ago, air strikes against North Vietnamese patrol boat bases in retaliation for attacks on U.S. ships in the Gulf of Tonkin were considered a drastic but necessary step to convince Hanoi of our commitment to the defense of South Viet Nam.

Today, almost the whole of North Viet Nam is being subjected to bombings that exceed in tonnages those on Germany in World War II, and are rising.

Almost exactly a year ago, the arrival of the first U.S. Army ground unit, which brought our total forces up to 42,000 men, served notice on the Viet Cong that they would have to deal not only with South Vietnamese military strength but with our own.

Today, that manpower total is in the neighborhood of 250,000, and is rising.

Eleven months ago, President Johnson authorized the use of American troops in direct combat against the Viet Cong if such assistance were requested by the South Vietnamese army.

Today, American casualties have twice in a month exceeded those of the South Vietnamese.

In December 1964, we announced a stepup of military and economic aid to South Viet Nam as a gesture of support for the regime of somebody called Premier Tran Van Huong.

Today, this nation is expending $1 billion a month on the prosecution of the war in Viet Nam — 30 times the figure a year and a half ago.

And through it all, the North Vietnamese have remained unconvinced.

They have been punished severely, but we seem to be suffering the effects of the law of diminishing returns.

It is not a recital to engender optimism. Yet even when viewed with the clarity of hindsight, it is difficult to see how it could have been otherwise.

The failure to take any of these steps, even if the result had not been early Communist engulfment of all Viet Nam, would have laid the President open to charges of appeasement, misjudgment and vacillation.

A year ago, no one — in or out of government — possessed the clairvoyance to be able to predict that despite these massive efforts, and despite such things as bombing pauses and tenders for negotiations, an end to the war would remain as distant as ever.

But the record of the past year or two years should be kept in mind when voices call for us to use up our last remaining feasible military alternatives, the bombing of Hanoi and the harbor of Haiphong. What comes after that — actual invasion of North Viet Nam?

At the present, hopes for a solution, or the beginnings of a solution, to the Viet Nam mess are being pinned on the idea of free elections in the south, to rally and unify the will and spirit of the people. This is the new alternative, but it is one that daily becomes more dubious as the rival factions in Saigon and Hue and Da Nang push closer to the edge of civil war.

We simply don't have many alternatives left, in any aspect of the struggle in Viet Nam. This is the sobering realization that is causing the lights to burn late in Washington.

Dear Ann:

Fear Sacrifice Unappreciated

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the 16-year-old girl whose parents could not afford to get her teeth straightened struck both my husband and me as very interesting.

Our daughter is also 16. We couldn't afford to get "her" teeth straightened either but we did it anyhow — at considerable sacrifice. We wanted Carol to have every chance in life. We felt we should do everything in our power to give her confidence.

The braces came off last week and now Carol has a radiant smile. But did she say, "Thank you, Mom and Dad," even once during the three years that we have been paying big, fat dental bills? Forget it. The odd thing is that Carol is not alone. This letter could have been written by the parents of thousands of teen-agers all over the country. They are ALL selfish and greedy. Gratitude isn't the "in thing" these days — even when the gifts run into thousands of dollars.

Please print my letter and your comments. I'm sure other parents would be interested.

MRS. MARY G. Dear Mrs. G: Did you and your husband put braces on Carol's teeth so she would say, "Thank you, Mom and Dad?" Or because you didn't want her to go through life with crooked teeth?

One of these days Carol "will" say, "Thank you, Mom and Dad." And do you know when that will be? When she has children of her own.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a widow in my middle 50's. My father was an English professor and my husband was a polished gentleman, too. Our children were taught manners from the cradle. They grew up graciously and married well.

I have been going with a widower for almost two years. He has other women friends, mostly widows like myself. I had always thought this man considered me only a pleasant person to escort to civic and social affairs. When he asked me to marry him I was surprised.

The problem is this: The man is very successful in business. He's self-made, and like most businessmen who came up the hard way, he talks about himself a great deal. He lacks the social graces of my late husband and his grammar leaves much to be desired. I hold an executive position and frankly would hesitate to introduce him to some of my better friends.

On the positive side, he is congenial, a non-smoker, a non-drinker and is a person of good character. What do you think? —CANT MAKE UP MY MIND Dear Mrs. Can't Make Up Your Mind: Do Mr. Self-made a big favor and say no. I would hope that he would then ask a woman who will introduce him to her "better" friends.

It would be a dirty trick to marry a man who obviously considers inferior. He'd be miserable, too. Don't do it.

Confidential to VICTIM OF INJUSTICE: I agree that some alimony raps are unjust, but this comes under the heading of the high cost of leaving. The law must favor the legally wed and not the illicit lovers. You said you wanted him more than anything in the world. So now you have him. Don't complain.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

POONA, India (AP)—Girls in skirts attract the attention of roadside Romeo, the city council said in a resolution adopted recently. It called on high school girls to wear India's traditional sari, a garment which runs from the neck to the ankles, because the sari commands respect.

Douglas Enlists Vote Magic Of Adlai E. Stevenson III

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

Washington Correspondent

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

CHICAGO (NEA)—The important 1966 struggle between

Illinois Sen. Paul Douglas and

Republican challenger Charles

Percy is tangled up with the rising fortunes of Adlai E. Stevenson III.

One of the late, elder Adlai's three sons, this 35-year-old state representative is running now for state treasurer—at the request of the worried Douglas.

There is no way to foretell, of course, exactly how much help Douglas will get from the already proven magic of young

Stevenson's name. But these things can be said: Douglas himself thinks enough of the possible rub-off effects to want

Stevenson to campaign with him from the same platform.

Illinois sources say Stevenson will comply.

Douglas' reasoning is understandable, since there is a very strong prospect that young top Illinois Democrats since he ran more than 600,000 votes behind Lyndon Johnson in 1964.

Even though it is widely agreed young Adlai would have preferred a second term in the Illinois House, a place on the state ticket will give him useful exposure. And the job, now a four-year-term spot, offers a good platform for wider ambitions.

Stevenson's independence as a political performer has netted Chicago's Mayor Richard

Daley more than a little. As a budding lawmaker, he tossed in several reform bills, including measures affecting conflict of interest and lobbying. They all bit the dust in the GOP-controlled state Senate.

Stevenson also endorsed a legislative colleague, Abner

Mikva, as a June 14 primary opponent against incumbent

U.S. Rep. Barrett O'Hara in the

trict. Daley forces have tried in vain to get Stevenson to modify that support.

Yet Daley is too much the realist not to appreciate the possible long-term value to the party cause of a man with

Stevenson's evident vote magic and independent record.

Boss-types often like to have their party roster graced by what an observer once called

"high-minded stiffs." When Illinois National Committeeman

Jacob Arvey chose Stevenson's father, the senior Adlai, for the governorship in 1948, he had that partly in mind.

But Paul Douglas, troubled especially by private polls which show him sagging in Chicago suburbs where previously he has done very well, is counting on Stevenson's short-run value in 1966 and it could be very substantial.

FINDING THE WAY

Enrich the Present

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

My friend had lost his memory. Alive, alert, involved, he had been a widely known citizen. Now illness has dealt its blow and his existence is in the narrow confines of the dimmed present. Truncated from his past, unrelated to his future, he is a lonesome hyphen connecting no words.

It is a sad tragedy to find that in a person. Suppose that it happens to a nation or a people? This is the season of remembrance and only in the courtesy of recognition. It is the awareness of the past, finding the push of tradition.

Wrote H.J. Paton, "It is only the ignorant and the superficial who learn nothing from past experience and past thought. But if we are to take the past as our guide, it is hard to see why we should follow past ages in everything except in one thing which makes them great, except that is to say, in attempting like them to add something to human knowledge and human achievement. Mere imitation will contribute nothing to the sum of human values."

This is a time to remember our past, and confront the present with some obligation to the future. We ought not to be a people who have lost our memory.

One of the products of that memory is honest humility. Who can stand at graves, watching flags fly, remembering that young men have died in generations we might stand at this place at this moment? It is a humbling thing to recognize so great a debt.

It is this memory that gives us the push of tradition, encouraging a new way to handle our problems and cease imitating that past. Remembering these brave men we are required to salute — and not to stop at that gesture. Our best salvo is in exploring new ways to preserve the values of our society.

Those heroes of our past stood tall. Remembering this, and listening to the voices of men who discuss the issues of our present, yet we seem to be sliding into the old habits, slipping into the old methods, as though the only thing we had learned from history was nothing. The rivalries of the past led to ruin. We remember that. Narrow nationalisms led to warfare. We remember that.

Most of all we ought to take time now to discover the burden and the lift of memory. "Seeing that we are surrounded by so great a company of witnesses, let us run with patience the race that is set before us."

Our best remembrance is in the way in which we enrich the present and inspire the future.

It's a time, Januslike, to peer out over the edges of our present and remember from whence we've come and where we're heading!

Mature Parent

The Cruelty of Jealousy

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE:

My sister and her husband have installed a toy auto-racing electrical system in their youngsters' play room. It is very expensive equipment and we can't afford one for our son. He is 10, just a year older than his younger cousin. Though he enjoys playing with their racing cars when we visit their home, I can see how envious he is. His cousins have always had so much more than he has.

ANSWER: Are you jealous of your sister's bigger income?

Children can manage this kind of envy quite well if we are free of envy. Aware that we possess advantages that we would not sacrifice for our sister's bigger income, it is easy to help our cousin-jealous children see that the advantages all the toy racing cars in the world. But if we are not aware of our own advantages, then we will indeed be as sympathetic with our son's sense of deprivation as we are toward our son and encourage his envy.

You are jealous of your sister's bigger income, aren't you? It's idiotic to be so ashamed of this kind of jealousy that we can't admit it. It's idiotic because if we can't admit it, it is easy to help a child remember why he look at it we can't recognize the irrational greed in it.

We can't see that our envy of our sister's money excludes all knowledge that her husband and children go along with her money. You don't want to exchange your husband for hers, do you? But that's part of the deal that includes enjoyment of her income. Do you want to exchange your child for her children? But this exchange, too, is part of the deal of exchanging incomes with your sister's income.

Look. We can't have everything we want.

Jealousy is cruel because it seduces us into forgetting this fact. It is cruel because it so centers our attention on the one coveted advantage possessed by the envious person that we forget that the coveted advantage is all mixed up with other involvements that we do not want. Jealousy says to us: "You are entitled to your sister's income while retaining your own husband, your own child."

Whether its irrational greediness is centered on our sister's bigger income or the bigger prettiness of the divorcee who makes a pass at our husband, jealousy blinds us to the truth that we can't have our sister's income without her family nor the divorcee's prettiness without her loneliness. If the truth can clarify for us, it is easy to help a child remember why he doesn't want to be his cousins.

All-American Liederkranz

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Q—My grandmother, who was born in Germany, insists that Liederkranz is a strictly German cheese. I always thought it was American.

A—You are right, grandma wrong, despite her memories of the old country. Liederkranz was first made quite by accident, in 1882 by an apprentice cheese maker in New York. When members of a singing society in Liederkranz Hall sampled it, they were excited about it and gave it the name "Liederkranz" (meaning "Wreath of Songs"). It has been an all-American product for a long time. Since 1926 it has been made in Van Wert, Ohio.

Now World Has Only 2 Food Export Areas

North America and Australia — New Zealand are the only two remaining food-export areas in the world, a University of Illinois agricultural economist points out.

Although a few years ago there were at least six major food-exporting areas, the faster growth of world population than food production has reduced the food-surplus areas.

Robert Spitzer notes that American agricultural exports have now reached a record volume of $6.5 billion a year, one-fourth of all U.S. exports. The upward trend shows that America is now sharing her tremendous agricultural productivity with the foreign consumer by expanding exports.

Spitzer appraises the situation in this way: The rise in American agricultural exports has come at a time when the world, temporarily we hope, is losing its capacity to feed itself. Population is simply outrunning food production increases.

The astonishing record of rising production achieved by American farmers since world War II has been achieved with the same amount of land in production. The number of farms has been cut in half and less labor is being used, but the use of capital in the form of machinery, feed, fertilizer, pesticides has increased greatly.

The entire record of production achievement rests on a use of managerial knowledge by American farmers as demanding as that of any large business.

To continue to expand production as needed to meet domestic and foreign demands, American farmers will need adequate amounts of capital and continued scientific research to back up the technical knowledge being applied to farming.

American agriculture must learn to unleash its productive potential steadily and in balance with domestic population and export needs if it is to avoid erratic prices, lagging incomes and periodic financial problems.

Spitzer spoke before the annual Illinois Production Credit Fieldmen's Conference held recently on the University of Illinois campus.

Japan Buys Illinois River Mussel Shells

These are sad days for washboards, three-riggers, pimplebacks, creepers and other fresh water clams that grow fat in the Illinois river. Japan wants their shells and is offering enough money for them to make it profitable for many persons along the river.

A new piece of machinery — mostly a rotating cylinder of welded steel mesh — is speeding up the job.

This photo shows Emmerson Rausch's set-up near the piers of the old Wabash railroad bridge at Meredosia. Rausch is the agent for the Tennessee Shell Co. of Camden, Tenn. He's paying $55 a ton for the mussels as caught—meat and all—or $75 after the clams have been "cooked out."

Pesticides Dangerous, Without Care—Deadly

Now that the growing season is reaching full swing, the antipesticide alarmist will spread the alarm that farmers and homeowners are poisoning both wildlife and people. A few careless individuals will use pesticides recklessly and pay the price for their carelessness.

Somewhere between these extremes, most Illinois residents will realize that pesticides play an important role in the bountiful harvest of high-quality food and feeds.

How dangerous are pesticides? As a cause of accidental death, pesticides—on a national level—rank about the same as or lower than aspirin. But in Illinois they are an even less important cause, according to University of Illinois extension entomologist H. B. Petty with the Illinois Natural History Survey.

On the basis of a nine-year average, transportation accounts for about 44 percent of accidental deaths on the national level. Fires claim 7.3 percent; falls on stairs, about 3 percent; and firearms, 2.5 percent. Pesticides claim 0.16 percent, while petroleum products and aspirin each claim 0.11 percent.

The figures for Illinois (1960-1964) are similar, motor vehicles claiming 43 percent of accidental deaths; fires and explosions, 8 percent; falls on stairs, 2.9 percent; and firearms, 2.3 percent. Aspirin claims 0.25 percent, petroleum products, 0.04 percent; and pesticides, 0.05 percent.

Illinois farmers and homeowners can improve even this good record by reading and heeding the label on the pesticide container. Chemical companies spend millions of dollars in research to insure the insecticide's effectiveness and safe use. But carelessness in application, storage or disposal can wreck a million-dollar program.

Most of the pesticide accidents occurring in Illinois take place in the home where baits are used to control insect pests. A foundation spray around the outside of the house will keep most insect pests out. Petty suggests contacting your local U. of I. extension farm adviser for details on foundation sprays.

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT!

As taxpayers, farmers contribute about $1.5 billion in real estate taxes, $1.5 billion in state and federal income taxes, $33.3 million in personal property taxes, more than $33.3 million in sales taxes, and nearly $66.6 million in taxes on motor fuels and vehicle license fees.

To most of us, farming means food. Each of us in 1963 consumed about 171 pounds of red meat, 38 pounds of poultry, 175 pounds of fruit, 230 pounds of vegetables, 634 pounds of dairy products (whole milk equivalent), and 106 pounds of potatoes. We can choose from as many as 6,000 different foods when we go to market—fresh, canned, frozen, concentrated, ready-to-serve, etc.

Farming also means shelter to many of us. Farmers and other small woodland owners control over half of the nation's commercial forests. It takes one acre of forest about 20 years to grow wood for the lumber in a 5-room house. Perhaps you don't associate your paper with farming, but one large New York paper uses the equivalent of the annual growth from 6,000 acres of forest for its Sunday issue alone. (from an editorial in Drovers Journal)

In the middle of the night, his telephone shrilled and the young man groggily picked up the receiver. It was long distance and he heard a voice say: "Is that you Son?"

"Mom!" he cried, "What is wrong?"

"Nothing," his mother chuckled. "It's your 30th birthday."

"Good Grief! You didn't drag me out of bed at 3 a.m. just to say 'Happy Birthday,' did you?" asked the man.

"Well, 30 years ago tonight," replied the mother, laughing, "you made me get up at 3 a.m. and I felt it was high time I paid you back!"

Shelling is a fine way to spend some leisure hours and pick up a few dollars at the same time, says Bobby Rausch, a nephew who works at the National Starch plant.

The barbless, four-pronged hooks—made by hand from galvanized wire—are rigged to an iron pipe which is dragged along the mud bottom of the river. The clams hook onto the prongs, and won't let go.

Bobby is shown above weighing in his catch, almost 400 pounds gathered in less than four hours.

The clams are "cooked out" in a vat that holds about 800 pounds. The shells are covered with a cloth and a fire is built under the vat. The steam kills the clams and causes them to open wide. The photo above shows Emmerson stoking up the fire. The operation takes about 30-40 minutes, and for best results you have to know what you're doing.

A small air-cooled gasoline engine powers the revolving cylinder as Dale Rausch, a son, scoops the steamed clams into the machine. The meat falls out through the screen and Glenn Williams of near Chambersburg comes over every day to pick them up for his hogs. Emmerson keeps a sharp eye at the elevator to pick out any objectionable shells.

Do your business with local people who represent established firms that will always be ready to stand behind their products or their work.

Be leery of people who are driving cars or trucks with out-of-state licenses and those who have such a good deal that you must buy now. The reputable dealer or salesman will not push you as hard; he will still be around to do business tomorrow or whenever you need him.

May 30 is observed each year as Memorial Day. This is the day we have set aside to especially remember those who have gone before us. This is the day when we show respect for all those who made our living in this great country possible. This is the day when we remember our family members and friends who have gone before us.

Let us also remember that the way we live and carry out our life's work through the year also reflects our memory and respect for those we honor on Memorial Day. Let's endeavor to honor them throughout the year. Remember the living also that we may not regret our actions when loved ones are gone.

Calf skins may make the best shoes but banana skins make the best slippers.

For cattle killed or injured, and $100 for horses and mules. The amount is $15 per head for goats, $25 for swine, $5 for turkeys, and the reasonable market value for sheep and poultry. There is a 50 percent increase over the set amounts for purebred animals.

If there is not enough money in the fund to cover all of the claims when they are paid each March, recovery is based on a pro rata share of available funds. Usually the fund is not much more than $3,000 because up to 50 percent of the excess over $3,000 may be transferred to the county rabies fund.

Recovery from the fund still does not bar a suit against the dog owner for damages. If the lawsuit is successful, the amount paid from the county fund is replaced and the balance goes to the owner of the injured animal.

The owner of any animal that dies from rabies or is killed because it is thought to be infected also is entitled to recovery from the dog license fund.

Prayer Poem

Smiles And Tears

By Mary Pence Claywell

Smile, old man... smile...
You'll find it still worth-while.
For smiles, can lift a world of cares...
And make life's trials, less hard to bear:
Shed tears, young man...
shed tears;
They'll soften... up the years:
There is a "time," you see,
to cry:
Tears help to clear... our
youthful eyes,
And they can ease a lot of pain,
And cheer like sunshine, after rain:
Both smiles and tears, we find, compete
In helping make our lives
complete;
Each tests us, and each
makes us strong,
And each of them, can right a wrong;
Both have the power, hearts,
to revive,
And both help keep... the soul
alive:
We thank Thee, Lord, for simple truth
That works alike... for age
and youth,
Inseparable... like smiles and
tears,
And life and love... and hopes and fears!

Let's Go Birding

Rail Morning

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Rails, birds not fences, can baffle the best of us bird watchers. These plump, chicken-like marsh-birds are large enough to see, but their secretive habits usually outwit us. And rails are not very numerous either. If we find the most common kind in our area, the Sora, we feel good. If we happen upon a Virginia, we feel better. If we, by good luck, catch sight of the King, we feel best.

Seeing two kinds of rails on the same morning is considered unusual even in the East, where rails seem more plentiful. Three kinds are too many to hope for. Yet we were lucky enough to see all three species on the gray drizzly morning of April 30. We were also lucky enough to have with us the perfect instrument—Pat Ward in Tom Crabtree's hip boots.

Bills Differ

Pat waded the marsh along Lake Mauvaisterre and flushed out both the Sora and the Virginia Rail. These two rails look about the same size, that of the Bob-white; but their bills are a sure mark of differentiation. The Sora's bill is short and yellow; the Virginia's is long and slightly decurved.

Buoyed up with our good finds, we drove on to a marsh bordering the Mauvaisterre Creek. We began the same tactics, but three other waders without hip boots and with wet feet joined Pat: Tom Crabtree and his son Jimmie, and Bob Randall. They spread out across the marsh and moved stealthily on, stalking anticipated rails. Soon they flushed out a Sora and then another Sora.

Shy Wader

Then the two of us on the embankment saw another rail, twice as large as the Sora and the Virginia, the King Rail, wading shyly and cautiously through the dense vegetation along the edge. As it moved away from us, we could see its white-lined stubby tail weaving through the tall dense marsh grass.

At last this large bird disappeared from the view of both the shore huggers and the waders. No human tactics could flush this King Rail out. Then we understood why Roger Tor Peterson had said that rails were more often heard than seen.

However, we had broken our record: three species of rails in one morning. Now we must meet another goal: we must continue to search for that rare small Yellow Rail. We mortals can never be satisfied.

PREPARING GEMINI 9

By WALTER B. HENDRICKSON JR.

(NEA Telephoto)

The original launching date for Gemini 9 was May 17, but the target craft failed to make it into orbit.

The launching of Gemini 9 was set back three weeks while an Auxiliary Target Docking Adapter (ATDA) was prepared for launching. The ATDA is basically a dummy Agena with the electronic aids to guide the Gemini and steering jets of a real Agena but no fuel of its own.

This target will be boosted into orbit by an Atlas missile. It can be used for practically everything the regular Agena could have been, except maneuvering.

When the new launch date arrives the launch crews from McDonnell and Martin will assemble in the blockhouse on Pad 19 early that morning. The McDonnell launch crew will take their places at their light blue consoles on the left side of the blockhouse. They begin the final five-hour countdown for the launching of Gemini 9. An hour later the Martin team begins the countdown for the Titan II at the light green consoles on the right hand side of the blockhouse.

Forty minutes before launch the white room atop the service tower is cleared. Then the huge erector service tower slowly folds down.

Final "Go"

The final "go" for launching Gemini 9 will be given just six minutes before the scheduled launch time. From then on Martin's chief test conductor, Frank Carey, will be responsible for the astronauts' safety and for sending the abort signal, if necessary. He keeps in constant check with the emergency forces—the "beach boss," helicopters, hard top rescue tanks.

Three visual observers also will report continuously on the condition of the rocket. Two of them are stationed on the neighboring pads, Pad 16 and Pad 20, and one is watching through a periscope in the blockhouse.

"They have a clear channel through to me, Carey says. 'The rule is, if two of the three give an abort command, it's up to us to throw the switch for the astronauts to get out.'"

Everyone in the blockhouse will stay at his post until six minutes after launch when Gemini 9 goes into orbit. Then the Martin team will prepare a report on the performance of the Titan II to be presented to the Air Force three hours after launch.

Meanwhile the McDonnell team is watching the performance of the Gemini 9 spacecraft and seeing if it is handling properly.

As soon as Gemini 9 completes its mission and returns safely to earth both the McDonnell and Martin Company teams will begin preparing for the Gemini 10 mission.

DISNEYLAND VISIT

Once upon a time I went to California. It took us one night and two days.

The next day we went to Disneyland. I took Mr. Toad's wild ride and I drove a racing car. I went in a roller coaster. I took a ride in a jungle safari. One elephant thought he was a big shot and blew water on us.

NARROW ESCAPE

By John Rankin

Billy follows his Uncle Adrian's suggestion and locks his collie Laddie in the barn because there have been dog thieves about. But when Billy gets up his Aunt Hattie tells him that the lock has been broken and Laddie is gone. Both know how cruelly these thieves often treat the dogs they steal, and that many never live to get to the laboratories where their lives would at least be spent in some study that might save many human lives.

There was none of the usual lighthearted chatter at the breakfast table this morning. Uncle Adrian was strangely silent. And while she tried to appear cheerful, Aunt Hattie just wasn't her gay, lively self. The food didn't taste right either, and after making a mere pretense of eating Billy excused himself and went up to his room.

But there was a quietness in the air. A heavy sort of feeling that wouldn't go away, and settled in the room and clung there like the dew on the sun-kissed dahlias on the lawn. And as Billy stood at the window and peered out aimlessly over the green-topped trees to the barn in the valley, the usually cheerful song of a cardinal perched on a ledge outside had a dismal ring to it now, and he turned away and went back downstairs.

Phone Rings

The telephone started ringing about then. Aunt Hattie hurried to answer it, and for the next half hour or so the line was buzzing with sympathetic neighbors that had heard about Laddie. Many reported their dogs missing too, and all directed suspicion to a couple of strange men observed touring the vicinity in a van truck late yesterday.

Uncle Adrian came in from the barn pretty soon and listened with mounting interest as Aunt Hattie repeated her telephone conversation with neighbors.

"Has anybody called the sheriff about those creepy characters in the van truck?" he asked at the end.
"Oh yeah, a guy at the filling station did," Billy put in quickly. "Guess they must have stopped for gas or something. But the dogs started fighting something fierce in the truck about that time and they pulled out of there in a hurry and took off down the road like crazy."

Police Alerted

"But the attendant took down the license number as they sped away and the police are looking for them," Aunt Hattie continued. "They're pretty sure the truck belongs to an outfit that steals dogs for a laboratory across the state line!"

Uncle Adrian's face went cold and set. His eyes hardened and the veins along his neck stood out like whipcords. "Just what I thought," he said in seething tones. "If I could get my two hands on those leeches I'd..." Aunt Hattie reached out to place a restraining hand on his shoulder. "But this is no time to lose your temper, Adrian. It will gain nothing, and Doctor Morrison has warned you about your blood pressure."

Uncle Adrian drew back and studied her quietly a moment. "I suppose you're right, Hattie," he said with a thoughtful shrug, and turned away.

Listening For News

And as the long hot day wore on everyone stayed within hearing distance of the radio waiting for the news to come on and listened for the telephone to ring. There was news, of course, but all of a routine nature. And as each hopeful and tension-filled hour passed and no word of Laddie, Billy's patience was wearing thin and Uncle Adrian was showing signs of impatience too.

Then finally some time during the afternoon Aunt Hattie came running from the kitchen and everybody glued their ears to the radio as the news had been waiting for came on.

Laddie Escapes

There was more but nobody cared about that now. That big brown collie just had to be Laddie! And for a little while everyone was trying to talk at the same time anyway.

Finally Billy managed to say, "Laddie won't fool around waiting for those guys to pick him up. He'll head straight for home and is maybe halfway here now."

"But it must be twenty miles to Cedar Junction," Aunt Hattie pointed out. "And in this terrible heat... and there is danger on the highway too."

AMY DOG'S PRANK

Once upon a time Amy my dog tore a whole roll of toilet paper up and when we came home it looked like the house was flooded with toilet paper. My dad left the toilet paper on the floor, that's how Amy got the toilet paper and tore it up.

SPACE FLIGHT

Once upon a time this boy David and I were building a rocket that would be able to carry three boys anywhere. It was ready for testing on Monday. We tested it. Everything was A. O. K.

We got in. Everything went fine, until a few minutes before it took off. The erector would not come down, it was stuck both ways, but we got it down. But all at once David pulled the lever which he thought was the erector lever but was really the firing lever. ZOOM and the boy David and I were gone. We were far out from our solar system. Mainly because we were using uranium, liquid oxygen and nitrogen ATOMS.

Zoom we landed on Crypton. There we met Super Boy's father Jurell. He repaired our rocket and we went home with Super Baby. Boom and Crypton was gone.

ODD NESTING PLACE is uncovered by wild mallard duck which finds way to avoid feathering a nest in Dubuque, Iowa. She simply laid her eggs in a coil of rope on floating home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McEvoy, on edge of Mississippi river. Dog living on houseboat did not discourage her or other ducks making area their year-round home. Any coil or pile of rope on boats or docks becomes nesting place, especially when fall shooting season begins.

Plan Traditional Osage Picnic June 3rd

The general planning committee for the annual Osage Orange Picnic, to be held on the Illinois College campus lawn June 3, pauses during a recent session at Barnes House. In the top photo are (seated) Mrs. Ellsworth Black; (standing) Mrs. Iver F. Yeager, Mrs. Arthur J. French, Mrs. Robert R. Hartman, Mrs. L. Walton, Mrs. Gwendolyn Lee, Mrs. Clyde Jones, Mrs. F. O. Elliott and Mrs. Edwin Varble.

The first Osage Orange Picnic, which was held 84 years ago, was originally a "work bee" called by President E. A. Tanner to remove the osage-orange hedge which then surrounded the campus. Since then, members of the community have joined the students, faculty, alumni, trustees, and others who have made the annual affair a picnic which highlights the Commencement Week.

Business Men Wage Secret War Against Tell-Tale Age Lines

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Behind the doors of their executive washrooms many big business men today are waging secret wars against jowl drag, eye-bags, worry furrows and outward ravages of hangover.

In small jars, gleaming with gold ornamentation for status impact, are formulas which will at least tone down tell-tale age lines in time for a man of importance to make his speech, a television appearance, or an appointment with a youth-conscious client.

Two kinds of facial masks are selling strongly, say department store buyers here.

Eye pads, another innovation for men, are said to be helpful in draining away the strain of wee hours in time for an alert and saintly appearance at the board meeting the morning after. The maker suggests their use after exposure to smoke-filled rooms and reading too much legal fine print.

Those fashion iconoclasts, today's young males who have refused to equate high style and scents with effeminacy, have paved the way for this boon in the pretty-up business during the past three years.

Once largely limited to producing shaving soaps and astringents, 156 firms, or 30 per cent more than last year — now turn out hundreds of virile-looking red, brown, black with gold packages containing jars, bottles, atomizers, and tubes that moisturize, lubricate, moisturize, and emulsify with such ingredients as lanolin, silicone, vitamins, estrogen, albumen, gelatin, sesame, and sharks' oil.

Altogether there now are more than 303 different fragrances sold either as colognes or after-shave lotions usually with lusty names inspired by the rugged outdoors or the sea.

Today the super-immaculate man can begin his morning ablutions with a bath friction that has the tingling effect of a sauna; shampoo his locks with a soap on a rope; apply bathpowder with his brass knuckles puff; shave over a translucent foam that lets him see where the most bristles are; then proceed to astringents, protective creams, deodorants, nongreasy hair oils, hand creams, and colognes. He can hold up the bathroom even longer than a woman.

Though youth pioneered as toiletries customers, the older man in ever-growing competition with youth in business and romance is unabashedly showing his way to the front of cosmetics counters.

Special lures for him are blemish mark-outs which, when applied subtly, lighten dark circles; as well as those soothing eye pads; and five to 10-minute face masks which, like a transparent coating of egg whites, lifts sagging face muscles and sagging morale.

"My customers are smart men. They hold top jobs and plan to hang onto them," a merchandise manager said of his facial mask customers. "He knows he can replace his Brooks Brothers suit any day but not his face."

NICHOLS PARK LADIES DAY GOLF NEWS

What a wonderful day for golf! The course never looked more beautiful, and the ladies enjoyed every minute of it.

We had a real good turnout, with one new member, Alda Sether. The play for the day was Regulation Golf, novelty event.

Low score, Fran Chumley; low score after penalties, Betty Dyer.

Most penalties, Alda Sether; low putts, Alpha Witham.

Now that Ladies Day is in full swing, please keep track of putts, and put each score on the cards in the club house, so that we may figure your handicap by June 15th.

Those of you who haven't joined us as yet, you still have time to get enough scores in for the next handicap date. So come on out and get started.

Until then — keep swinging. Alpha Witham

Illinois Prairie Girl Scout Council News

In the spring a Girl Scout's fancy turns to thoughts of camping. Even the youngest Brownie can find the out-of-doors an exciting and rewarding experience. All she needs is a guiding hand to help prepare her for camp. Two days of outdoor and camp training have been held at Camp Shagbark. On May 16th a session was planned.

While many troops have been enjoying cook-outs, others have been busy with bridging activities aimed at younger Scouts. Mrs. Judy Zink's Senior troop held a Scouts' Own and evening campfire for four troops of Cadettes and Juniors on May 13th.

Mrs. Betty Applebee's Cadette Troop has been inviting Junior Girl Scouts to attend meetings with them. This is a good way to let the younger girls see what new adventures are possible in scouting.

Mrs. Gladys Adams' Junior troop at North Jacksonville School had as their guests the third grade Brownies from Mrs. Vieira's and Mrs. Brown's troops.

Cadette Troop 13, Mary Kolber leader, has certainly been busy. They have been teaching scout songs to Brownie and Junior girls at Our Saviour's and Jefferson schools. They have also assisted at troop ceremonies and hosted another Junior troop.

Some Junior Scouts are using their outdoor cooking skills as an opportunity to entertain Brownies. Mrs. Joan Williams' troop held a cookout for Brownies at Washington school. In the rush of overnights and cookouts let's not forget those Camp Shagbark registrations. Mrs. Bette Jackson, camp director, promises a lot of fun and good camping for all.

Heat and eat: drain canned whole kernel corn and heat with canned stewed tomatoes. Delicious with hamburgers!

There are a lot of problems in today's hand. South might well open with a forcing two bid but we favor bidding just one diamond. After North's one heart response South must bid two spades. North has 11 high card points and stoppers in both suits not bid by his partner. He certainly has enough to justify a jump to three no-trump.

South's five spade bid is sound enough but we do not approve of North's continuation to the slam. North does have 11 high card points but except for the ace of clubs they are all queens and jacks and only one queen is in one of his partner's suits. Still we never want to criticize success and because six spades can be made, there can't be much wrong with the final contract.

If West opens anything but a trump, South will have no trouble with the slam but West has almost an automatic trump lead. A diamond opening into South's first suit would be silly and he really should not lead from either of his kings.

South wins the trump lead in his own hand and has one and only one correct play at trick two. He must lead his seven of diamonds!

The reason he leads the seven is that he wants to encourage West to rise with the king if he holds that card.

West plays low and South plays the four from dummy. If East makes his normal play of the king South has no further problems. If East has an inspiration and plays low, South must take two rounds of trumps and then play ace and another diamond.

What do you do?
 A—Bid one spade. You don't have much of a hand but you do have spades and can afford to overcall at the one level.

TODAY'S QUESTION
 You bid one spade and your partner jumps to three spades. What do you do now?

Public Library Adopts Summer Agenda June 1

From May 31 to September 1, the adult department of the Jacksonville Public Library will be open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Wednesday. The children's department will be open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. during the entire summer.
Patrons are reminded that should it be necessary to return books when the library is closed, there is a courtesy box at the curb for their convenience.
Special Privilege
A special privilege is available to patrons beginning June 1. Books may be marked for vacation and will then not be due until September 1. Readers wishing this service may ask the library assistant at the circulation desk for specific details.

Reading Game
The children's department will have "The Circus" as the theme of its annual children's reading game. For each book read the reader will get a colored dot to paste upon his paper clown, with the object being to make the clown more colorful by adding dots. A table in the children's department will feature a circus display, with one ring having trapeze performers, another featuring elephants and the third ring holding a lion-taming act. Children who read and report upon ten books during the summer will receive diplomas for this achievement.

DAY

On This Day, As We Pause in Silent Memory . . .

. . . a time to pause in tradition and tribute . . .

It is our privilege, on Memorial Day, to honor our dead who so courageously gave their lives on the battlefields of distant lands that our great democracy might be preserved. National recognition of their bravery and sacrifice is the only fitting way to show our gratitude.
